

The code requirement is being dropped world wide. It is currently serving as a barrier to many good hams that do not have the time or the ability to learn the code. The inclusion of the code requirement to upgrade a license is outdated and should be removed. As a minimum, an amateur radio operator should be allowed to upgrade to General without a code test, giving the limited access to HF as per the current license, with an upgrade to Extra requiring a code test.